These mechanisms are known as the "immune system". The immune system involves complex cellular and biochemical pathways in which components work together to recognize and neutralize foreign bodies, invading microorganisms, and other potentially harmful agents. The immune system allows the survival of an individual and propagation of the species. However, the immune system can be highly complex and the many complex interactions among the various components of the immune

The purpose of this study was to investigate the role of adenosine in sympathetically mediated vasodilation in rat mesenteric vascular bed. The mesenteric vascular bed was perfused at a constant perfusion pressure of 80 mmHg and the arterial and venous effluent was continuously collected and analyzed. The autonomic nervous system was stimulated by 10(-8) mol/l phenylephrine, 10(-9) mol/l tyramine, 10(-8) mol/l adrenaline, or 10(-6) mol/l acetylcholine. The effects of 10(-5) mol/l S-(4-nitrobenzyl)-6-thioinosine (NBTI), an adenosine A1 receptor antagonist, on sympathetic-induced vasodilation were also investigated. The vascular responses to tyramine, adrenaline and acetylcholine were attenuated by NBTI. The effect of NBTI on tyramine-induced vasodilation
