What a night! This is a horror game in the spirit of classic horror movies and game jams. Be scared by not knowing what is coming next. We created a horror game to play against the fears of many people. We think you'll find it interesting. The game takes place around midnight. You wake up in the isolated apartment of your friend and confidant Olja. You find out that she has been out for the whole night and all of the following is somehow weird. You spend the entire game trying to find an escape or a solution to unlock a series of doors and find out what is going on. You need to keep awake. And if you want to prevent insanity, don't listen to the sounds and vibrations that pass through the walls. DRIVE is designed to play a horror game, but it's also a game jam. IT HAS SNOW. Something is very wrong with the cold and damp air in Olja's apartment. The clock reads 14:22:34. Oskar Schuster has a very strong soundtrack in this game. We have recorded every sound in the game, using instruments, microwaves, phones, speakers. We took every possibility of generating sounds that we could not reproduce by being there. We had many discussions to create a new audio experience. We played a lot of games and movies and listened to a lot of soundtracks. The sound that passes through the walls is something that freaks out people. We have wanted to create something that can be used as an inspiration of this fear. Those sounds are created by mixing samples and synthesizers, with particular attention to the play of the humming of Oskar's Celesta. The player has the possibility to avoid listening to the sounds that pass through the walls of Olja's apartment. The sounds that come from the walls are created using two doors. 1. Game jam 2019 At the end of September Olja invited me to make a game about an impossible world. I am really delighted to be here and to create a game that has no rules and no boundaries. So I took the theme "Something is very wrong"

The Sink Gods is a band from Vancouver, British Columbia, Canada, that is noted for its anarchist lyrics and its frequent performances of anarchist-focused music. Formed by Brian Patrick Carroll in January 2002, the band has recorded four albums and performed live every year since then. The band's popularity grew after its album Wagonmaster and its accompanying tour. In 2004, the band won the RPM Fan Choice Award for artist of the year. In September 2007, the band won the Indie Award for rock album of the year for its album Caca. In 2009, the band was nominated for a Juno Award for Alternative Album of the Year for its album 300. History Carroll was the co-founder and owner of Aardschok record label and distribution company. After he ended his day job in October 2000 to focus on his label, Carroll started performing in a folk music duo named 3 Ghosts in December 2000, at which time he decided to start a full band. 3 Ghosts disbanded in January 2002, and Carroll started The Sink Gods after he and his friends started jamming at Carroll's parents' house and called themselves "The Sink Gods". The band's name came from the Slade song of the same name. The name of the band was kept secret until the release of their first CD. The band's name is a reference to hydraulic piping; the term "Sink" refers to the area above a sink in the foundation of a home where the temperature is often warmer. First releases The first Sink Gods album, Idiot of Our Time, was released on Carroll's Aardschok label in 2002. The band toured for the first time that year as well. After Idiot, the band released A Violent Life in 2004, which was unlike any of the bands on Aardschok before it. Carroll's bands before The Sink Gods include some of Vancouver's most successful and well-known punk bands, such as Starflyer 59, Scientists, and Bell Orchestral, Heavys and Enkindled. Rise to popularity After the release of A Violent Life, The Sink Gods began playing a local schedule every year and another tour in 2004. The band received national attention and increased popularity through its first tour with members of Pennywise and Alkaline Trio. The Sink Gods were one of the opening bands on the Alkaline Trio tour, along with Hundred Reasons and The Vandals. They were the opening act for such
