Make your way through 5 missions in Solo and Online mode. Defend your base from the ultimate giant robots. Build your own giant robot. Design your own base to withstand enemy attacks. Crush your enemies with the giant stomping foot. Imagine being a living, breathing, functioning “Tron” ball, zipping around the maze like levels of a computer game, and performing all the duties and feats of a worker-bot. That is the dream job of a VRobot. Well, in Luden.io VRobot, you can live out that dream. Complete the challenge of your robot and crush your enemies in Luden.io, the first VR game on Google Cardboard! Lead The Pod To Victory Choosing your position wisely and just attacking, like the pros, is key to victory. The game comes with a survival mode which is a training mode. This mode is designed for you to work on your offensive-defensive moves, as well as climbing and grasping the different parts of the 3D maze. For the sake of efficiency, when climbing the walls of the maze, use the charge button to increase your grabbing strength, and the jump button to leap over obstacles. Additionally, climbing up walls is faster on the wall where there’s no robot. Design The Perfect Base To build the perfect base for your enemy, choose wisely where you want to place your robot. Make sure the base is right for the type of monster you want to survive. You have the ability to place turrets, walls, and traps at various levels. Each monster has its own strengths and weaknesses. For instance, if a tank monster is coming for you, make sure you place a high wall, so you can climb it. On the other hand, a stomping-bot uses his stomping-foot to crush and destroy all enemies, so make sure you build a floor that doesn’t even have an uneven surface. Build The Perfect Base for Your Robot Of course, the most important aspect of building a perfect base is knowing what your robot can do. This is where the base simulation comes in. The robot you design must be a worker-bot, and you can only build walls, traps, and turrets for your robot. The turret is the real boss of your base. Unlike a normal base, you can’t just place a turret at the very back, as it will not fire or shoot out a toxic fluid. Turrets instead fire at enemies.

EDIT2 A few things that I noticed and have had sent off for cleaning! 1: Yes, if you wish to pay me, my e-mail address is at the top of this article. 2: The $30.00 per game offer isn't valid any more. However, I am now willing to do cheaper for them if the owner wants, but this should be solely upto that person not me. 3: Do not be pressured into paying for support or downloading anything else iCONX77 Feel like a center, center Thank you for all the guides to making the super deformed sprites, except for the required cutting/pasting of sprites. On 3DS programming, cut/pasting is not the preferred way of working. *LuckyFools I too would like to thank the spriteshapers that help make some of the most entertaining mods in the entire forums community, as well as those that provide the means to allow the community to make their own props. Thank you as well for reading "Random Posts" or as I call it, "guest posts" as I believe that it is quite fun to meet and chat with fellow NESmod users about ways to improve the battery life of our mods. I must say as someone who took this to the extreme, I have found that once you have it all set up how

Starship Dust is a stylish, asymmetrical 2D tactical space strategy game, in the vein of games like X-COM, Freelancer, GalCiv and more, about commanding a fleet of mobile interstellar stations, and building a thriving intergalactic business empire. Designed to be a self-contained portable game without reliance on any Internet connection, it's the ultimate space survival game, a genre that has lain dormant since the glory days of the Space Empires series and take your place in the Fleet. Choose your starting Fleet or Saviour ship, and pilot it through the massive campaign, where you'll explore uncharted systems, uncover hidden research data and do battle against rogue FTL cruisers. When you load the game again, it keeps your progress in a portable save format, and means you can move your progress to an Android or iOS device at any time. You can also play multiplayer skirmish games online, or against your friends in the same game for local multiplayer across multiple devices. And of course, you can build your own awesome space stations, and take it to the next level using procedural generation to build and furnish your workshops and docking bays. The beauty of Starship Dust is in the freedom to create your own space station and game experience. From the very beginning, you can start with virtually no resources, and still experience an exciting story-driven campaign. Features: Create your own Starship - make your own space stations and expand your fleet. Choose from 10 unique ships at the start, each with their own starting station and technology level. Expanded Multiplayer - The new multiplayer mode, called Time Shifts, lets you play games and move your progress between different devices on the same account. It also lets you play one of your Steam friends' single player games offline, and provides campaign saving and loading between games. Immerse Yourself in a Highly Customisable Atmosphere - Gameplay is based around the interwoven story-driven strategic side of the game, and a crisp and easy-to-read noir-style UI, to bring the detail of the universe to life. Tailor Your Experience to Suit Your Lifestyle - A new procedural generator makes all production, research, trade and space travel data completely unique, and opens up a whole new world of tactical depth and exploration. Customize your game experience with available systems - Every ship has different abilities, and there's everything from
