PlayStation PSN.Q: Getting different results from the same query on two different servers

I have two servers hosted on two different hosting companies. They are on the same router/switch and are using the same IP address for their nameservers. When I attempt to use a direct connection to the servers (ssh into the server), I see all of the expected data. However, I have been having issues when trying to connect using the web portal of the hosting provider. For example, the following query fails (note the syntax is correct): `SELECT * FROM `policies` WHERE (`status` = 'active') ORDER BY `policy_name``

`ASC` While executing the above query in PhpMyAdmin results in the following error: Incorrect syntax near the keyword 'ORDER' Note, I don't get any error messages when attempting the query in the terminal.

However, if I run the query in the terminal, there are no errors (i.e. nothing gets reported in the messages). When running the query in PhpMyAdmin, I always get the above error. If I use "select *" instead of the "select * from" syntax, I can get no errors reported. It just seems to be some sort of error in the syntax.

My queries are fairly short and not very complex. A: Look into the php.ini for your php installation; you'll want to enable the `display_errors` option. This will generally show errors to the user and get them to fix their queries. Critics cry foul as T&T Police force is reduced Banister Barracks, Sortedley, Port-of-Spain, Tuesday, May 26, 2013, Folie Careen is questioning the Police Force drop by demotion and reduction to an initial rank of sergeant. SORTLEY — Police Commissioner Folie Careen has lost hundreds of officers and dozens of vehicles when the T&T Police Force were demoted and reduced to an initial rank of sergeant. CAREEN said he will try to reinstate the officers and vehicles lost in the process which was part of a probationary period. “We are doing this to 0cc13bf012
