Download.Q: Why do we have to use this keyword in the constructor of an abstract class? I have created a simple class which takes the name of a file and returns its length (using ftell), however I have a problem when creating this class - I'm not sure why but its telling me that I'm missing the "this" keyword in a constructor. Could someone explain why its telling me this? class FileTest { public: FileTest(const string & fileName); const long GetFileLength() { long length = 0; ifstream infile(fileName); if (!infile.is_open()) throw "Failed to open file" Practical guide to the endoscopy reprocessor for generalists.
