- URL sharing in presets, actions, and smart collections has been extended to include FTP and Amazon S3.
- HP - Photoshop Elements can now also import photos directly into Lightroom 5, either from a local drive or from a memory card.

You no longer need to go to Settings to enable it. Share for Review is enabled by default and you can easily opt out of it if you wish. Once enabled, the tool's settings are now presented in the context menu of a layer in Photoshop, making it much easier to decide which comments to show. Comments are shown on-screen with a tooltip and appear as a note in the Layers Panel. You can adapt the comment by editing the note, creating a script, and associating with a command. You can also associate an action with the note, allowing the reviewer to opt-in or out at the next location you use the layer. No need to mess with the parent layer now; simply toggling the comment check box on any layer in Photoshop lets you select whether to hide the layer or not.
